Livingston County is located in north central Illinois, with a population of 38,950 (2010 U.S. Census). Livingston County is home to persons identifying themselves as White (91.8%), Black (4.9%), or Hispanic/Latino (3.9%). According to the U.S. Census, 11.2% of residents live at or below the federal poverty level (FPL), compared to the state rate of 13.3%.

Livingston County was named after Edward Livingston, who served as the mayor of New York City and secretary of state. Although he had no connection with Illinois, the Illinois General Assembly thought him accomplished enough to name a county after him.

Children under the age of 5 years constitute approximately 7% of the population of Livingston County. Early care and education in the county are provided by Head Start, Preschool for All (PFA), and child care settings (including licensed child care centers, licensed family child care homes, and license-exempt child care centers or homes).

The Illinois Early Intervention Program (funded by IDHS) provides services in the home to children with disabilities, birth to age 3. Preschoolers with special needs (ages 3-5) may be served in PFA sites, Head Start programs, child care settings, early childhood special education classrooms, or the home.
Publicly Funded Preschool in Livingston County

According to population estimates reported on IECAM (2008 census estimates), 31% of 3- and 4-year-old children in Livingston County are living in families at or below 185% FPL (first PFA priority level).

The map (top right) shows the distribution of publicly funded preschool sites in Livingston County (divided into townships). The color ramp (in the legend) indicates the percentage of 3- and 4-year-old children who live in households with an income at or below 185% FPL. Note that those townships in the darker shades of brown reveal a higher percentage of poverty. The map highlights the importance of locating PFA and Head Start sites in areas of highest need.

Child Care in Livingston County

The map (bottom right) shows the distribution of child care settings superimposed on the county (divided into townships). Note that the red squares indicate licensed child care centers, the blue triangles license-exempt child care centers, and the green dots family child care homes. Although child care centers serve children who live above 185% FPL, many children from low-income families are cared for in child care settings all over the county.
