PIKE COUNTY

Pike County is located in western Illinois, with a population of 16,430 (2010 U.S. Census). Pike County is home to persons identifying themselves as White (96.9%), Black (1.7%), or Hispanic/Latino (1%). According to the U.S. Census, 17.1% of residents live at or below the federal poverty level (FPL), compared to the state rate of 13.3%.

Pike County was named in honor of Zebulon Pike, who was the leader of the 1806 Pike expedition to map out the south and west portions of the Louisiana Purchase. The county seat is Pittsfield, a community of just over 4,000.

Children under the age of 5 years constitute approximately 6% of the population of Pike County. Early care and education in the county are provided by Head Start, Preschool for All (PFA), and child care settings (including licensed child care centers, licensed family child care homes, and license-exempt child care centers or homes).

The Illinois Early Intervention Program (funded by IDHS) provides services in the home to children with disabilities, birth to age 3. Preschoolers with special needs (ages 3-5) may be served in PFA sites, Head Start programs, child care settings, early childhood special education classrooms, or the home.
Publicly Funded Preschool in Pike County

According to population estimates reported on IECAM (2008 census estimates), 49% of 3- and 4-year-old children in Pike County are living in families at or below 185% FPL (first PFA priority level).

The map (top right) shows the distribution of publicly funded preschool sites in Pike County (divided into townships). The color ramp (in the legend) indicates the percentage of 3- and 4-year-old children who live in households with an income at or below 185% FPL. Note that those townships in the darker shades of brown reveal a higher percentage of poverty. The map highlights the importance of locating PFA and Head Start sites in areas of highest need.

Child Care in Pike County

The map (bottom right) shows the distribution of child care settings superimposed on the county (divided into townships). Note that the green dots indicate family child care homes. Although no child care centers are located in Pike County, many children from low-income families are cared for in family child care homes.
