Johnson County is located in southern Illinois, with a population of 12,761. Johnson County is home to persons identifying themselves as White (89.9%), Black (8.5%), or Hispanic/Latino (3.3%). According to the U.S. Census, 15.9% of residents live at or below the federal poverty level (FPL), compared to the state rate of 14.4%. The median household income is $41,414 compared with the state median income of $57,166.

Children under the age of 5 years constitute approximately 5% of the population of Johnson County. Early care and education in the county are provided by Head Start, Preschool for All (PFA), and child care settings (licensed child care centers, licensed family child care homes, and license-exempt child care centers or homes).

The Illinois Early Intervention Program (funded by IDHS) provides services in the home to children with disabilities, birth to age 3. Preschoolers with special needs (ages 3-5) may be served in PFA sites, Head Start programs, child care settings, early childhood special education classrooms, or the home.

For this resource, IECAM used the U.S. Census Bureau's QuickFacts, which compiles demographic statistics based on various data programs (e.g., Population Estimates Program, American Community Survey 5-year estimates). The data presented above was retrieved in February 2016 from www.census.gov/quickfacts.
According to population estimates reported on IECAM (2013 census estimates), 30% of 3- and 4-year-old children in Johnson County are living in families at or below 185% FPL (first PFA priority level).

The map (top right) shows the distribution of publicly funded preschool sites in Johnson County (divided into townships). The color ramp (in the legend) indicates the percentage of 3- and 4-year-old children who live in households with an income at or below 185% FPL. Note that those townships in the darker shades of brown reveal a higher percentage of poverty. The map highlights the importance of locating

Child Care in Johnson County

The map (bottom right) shows the distribution of child care settings superimposed on the county (divided into townships). Note that the red squares indicate licensed child care centers and the green dots family child care homes. Although child care centers serve children who live above 185% FPL, many children from low-income families are cared for in child care settings all over the county.
